We from upstair put an end to back pain for rescue workers and help ambulance companies tackle their staff shortages.

Employees in patient transport struggle with physical overload. This leads to stress, illness and even occupational disability. For companies, this results in staff shortages, frequent rescheduling and even the cancellation of trips.

Our electric stair-climbing transport chair enables easy and fast patient transport from door to door - without any effort. Narrow doors, slopes and even circular stairs are no longer a challenge. Where today up to six people are needed, patient transport is now possible with only one person!
